

Jerry and Frances Wilson knew the value of Christian education. Both their children attended Seventh-day Adventist schools and are college graduates.

Applying yourself and being the best at whatever you do, has always been the standard in the Wilson family.

Once kids and grandkids were educated, Jerry and Frances went on to provide worthy student scholarships for students at Beacon Christian School in Lewiston, Idaho, Upper Columbia Academy and Walla Walla University. So it seemed like a good fit for their belief in Christian education to provide financial support in building Palisades Christian Academy when Frances learned, through friendship with Ron & Joyce Knutson, about the need. She wanted to share in Knutson's heart for Christian education and chose, without prompting, to contribute to the building fund. The new facility could not have happened without Frances Wilson's generous donation.

Although Jerry and Frances are deceased, their legacy for what they have done for education, especially Christian education, will influence lives and be remembered by many for years to come.

Thank you Jerry & Frances Wilson!
